The text is written in a medieval script, likely a form of Gothic or similar, and is arranged in several lines. It appears to be a list or a set of instructions, possibly related to the botanical illustration below. The text is somewhat faded and difficult to decipher precisely, but it contains words that suggest a medicinal or agricultural context.

44
The text is written in a medieval Gothic script, likely a form of Old English or Old Norse, and is arranged in a column on the left side of the page. The text is partially obscured by the illustration of a tree on the right. The text appears to be a list or a series of entries, possibly related to the tree or its parts, as suggested by the botanical illustration. The text is written in a dark ink on a light-colored parchment background.

This is a drawing of a plant with two clusters of blue flowers at the top. The leaves are green and have several holes, suggesting they have been eaten by insects. The roots are brown and fibrous. The text above the plant is in a medieval script, likely Latin or a related language, and appears to be a description or a list of properties of the plant.

This block of text is located to the left of the plant's base. It is written in a medieval script, likely Latin, and appears to be a list of properties or a description of the plant's parts.

This block of text is located to the right of the plant's base. It is written in a medieval script, likely Latin, and appears to be a list of properties or a description of the plant's parts.

The first part of the page contains several lines of handwritten text in a cursive script, likely a historical or medical record. The text is somewhat faded and difficult to decipher, but appears to be organized into columns.

Vertical text on the right edge of the page, possibly a library or collection number, written in a small, dark ink.

Handwritten text in a cursive script, likely a botanical description or a list of items, partially obscured by the illustration below. The text is written in dark ink on aged, yellowish paper.

The first thing which the King of France should do is to have all his subjects
 to be well governed and to have the King to be the best and most noble Prince in Christendom. And for the first thing which he should do is to have all his subjects to be well governed and to have the King to be the best and most noble Prince in Christendom. And for the first thing which he should do is to have all his subjects to be well governed
 and to have the King to be the best and most noble Prince in Christendom.

The second thing which the King of France should do is to have all his subjects
 to be well governed and to have
 the King to be the best and most noble Prince in Christendom. And for the first thing which he should
 do is to have all his subjects to be well governed and to have the King
 to be the best and most noble Prince
 in Christendom. And for the first thing which he should do is to have
 all his subjects to be well governed
 and to have the King to be the best and most noble Prince in Christendom.

The third thing which the King of France should do is to have all his subjects
 to be well governed and to have
 the King to be the best and most noble Prince in Christendom. And for the first thing which he should
 do is to have all his subjects to be well governed and to have the King
 to be the best and most noble Prince
 in Christendom. And for the first thing which he should do is to have
 all his subjects to be well governed
 and to have the King to be the best and most noble Prince in Christendom.

The first part of the text is a dense block of handwritten script, likely a list or a series of entries. It begins with a large initial letter, possibly 'H' or 'H', followed by several lines of text. The script is cursive and somewhat difficult to decipher due to its age and style.

This section continues the handwritten text, starting with another large initial letter. The entries appear to be organized in a structured manner, possibly as a list of items or names.

The third section of text begins with a large initial letter and contains several lines of script. The handwriting remains consistent with the previous sections.

The final section of text on the page starts with a large initial letter and concludes the list or series of entries. The script is clear and legible, though still characteristic of the historical period.

Handwritten text in the upper half of the second page.

Handwritten text in the upper half of the third page.

Handwritten text in a cursive script, possibly Latin or a historical European language, located above the botanical illustration.

In the top left corner, there is a decorative initial 'P' followed by several lines of handwritten text in a historical script, likely Latin or a related language. The text is somewhat faded and difficult to decipher, but it appears to be a list or description of botanical specimens.

This is a vertical inscription on the left margin of the page, written in a cursive hand. It appears to be a title or a reference for the illustration, possibly identifying the plant species.

The text is written in a medieval Gothic script, likely a form of Latin or Old French, and is arranged in several lines across the top of the page. The script is dense and characteristic of the period.

A vertical column of text is written in the left margin of the page, following the binding edge. It appears to be a commentary or a list of related items, written in the same medieval script as the main text.
